

LISTEN THINK ADD YOUR VOICE

THE DALLAS INSTITUTE FESTIVAL OF IDEAS

MARCH 26 2011 at the Dallas Museum of Art

THE FUTURE OF JOURNALISM AND THE MEDIA

Keynote Ken Auletta is media columnist for The New Yorker and a journalist who has been described as combining “the probing mind and easy charm of a top intelligence agent with the glamour that befits the holder of a high-profile job.” He is a regular guest on The NewsHour with Jim Lehrer, Charlie Rose, and Nightline and has published five bestsellers, including Googled: The End of the World as We Know It.

Christine Allison is President of D Magazine Partners, Ltd., and founder of D Home, which has received several awards for excellence. She is author of numerous books on a variety of topics.

George Getschow is writer-in-residence for the Mayborn Literary Conference and lecturer in the Mayborn School of Journalism at UNT. He has been a Pulitzer Prize Finalist.

Robert Mong is editor of The Dallas Morning News and has been instrumental in building and shaping news coverage during a period of extraordinary changes in the media world.

Shawn Williams launched DallasSouthBlog.com in 2006 and then helped form the nonprofit Dallas South News in 2009 to inform underserved communities.
